Got e-mail from my dad today. I think the jist of it was, "Hey, I miss you! Come visit, give me a call, whatever." But since, as far as I can tell, he's literally unable to say or write that or anything like it, I got something more like, "I assume you're busy. Please call when your schedule allows to discuss holiday plans." Only less intimate.

Heartwarming.

This on the same day that my EMT certification expired. I chose to let it expire--that's not what I do anymore, after all--but it was weirdly like losing a finger or something. To over-dramatize.

Plus the Stanford thing I'm phone-consulting on...

Pardon me while I go eat a whole pint of ice cream by myself.

Thank you

...And there goes the weekend

But hey, we got a day and a half of this one! And I got to sleep in for two whole mornings. Too bad

COLLAPSE

Oh, man. I think it would freak me out to let a credential like that expire.

Too much work to maintain it?

P.S. Re: your dad: I wonder if VR therapy would help. Or maybe pointing out to him that he's really playing to the stereotype.

Therapy is for, you know, sick people. Nothing wrong with Dad. He'll be the first to tell you so. ;>P

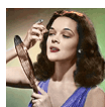

I kept having to drop the refresher courses 'cause we were halfway across the country at the time. Tough job to take time off from, this is. So you'll just have to keep fucking yourself up so I can stay in practice. g

You would think in a sensible world, the Bureau--oh, right. Same Bureau that gives Hafs & me a supplemental food allowance.

And Dulce de Leche when that runs out. g Chocolate sauce. There should be chocolate sauce somewhere on the way home.

"Hey! You got potassium in my ice cream!"

"Well, you got ice cream in my potassium!"

Hee. B&J are taking good care of us all.

With chocolate chunks, don't forget.

(1200 calories a pint.)

(73.5 calories per tablespoon for hot fudge sauce, and they haven't built the teapot that can hold me!)

Thank you
